FIRST FATALITY FROM RABIES OCCURS HERE

Progress In Cotton Picking Is Unprecedented

ABSENCE OF RAINS, GOOD WEATHER IS ADVANCING CROPS

Picking Already Ended In Some Sections Of The Belt

ALABAMA CROPS ARE NEEDING RAIN

Progress Of Cotton Is Mostly Fair With Deterioration

(Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—Crop and weather conditions in Southern states for the week ended yesterday were summarized by the department of agriculture today as follows:
Actual absence of rain during much of the week in the principal cotton states with bright sunny weather made ideal conditions for harvesting a cotton crop and this work made an unusually rapid advance, being much ahead of the average season.

In fact the seasonable progress in picking is reported as probably unprecedented in some south central portions of the belt.

Cotton, especially the late crop, was benefited by cooler weather and showers in Texas with premature picking checked, but the crop continued to deteriorate in Oklahoma with heavy shedding and too early picking caused dryness and hot weather.

Picking has become general in the latter state, deterioration continued in west central Arkansas and the weekly progress was poor to only fair in Mississippi, Alabama and Tennessee.

There was some interruption of picking by frequent showers in southern Louisiana and rainfall in that section was rather unfavorable for open fields. Tobacco is good to excellent in the Ohio river north and east, but the south is suffering for rain as all minor crops.

Cane is doing well in Louisiana.

In Alabama most of the crops need rain badly. The condition of corn and sweet potatoes and minor crops is bearable, ranging from poor to good. Pastures are drying up badly.

Business of cotton is mostly fair with deterioration in many places. Conditions range from poor to very good and mostly only fair. Opening rapidly with much shedding. Picking is progressing rapidly where labor is efficient. It is nearing completion in some sections.

Several Hundred Plan To Attend Two Days "Singing"

Several hundred singers plan to attend the two days singing of the Sacred Harp Society here, beginning Saturday morning at the Morgan County court house, officials of the organization announced today.

A cordial invitation has been extended to the public to attend any and all of the sessions. In addition to the 200 singers who plan to be here for the event, a number of other visitors from various North Alabama counties will attend, together with large crowds from the Twin Cities.

Saturday and Sunday at noon lunches will be spread on the spacious lawn of the courthouse and an old fashioned picnic dinner enjoyed.

Plans now are being formulated to enlarge the scope of the meetings, here with the expectation that interest in the meetings can be built up until they are attended by several thousand people.

NAVAL SEAPLANES SEARCHING OCEAN FOR MISSING CRAFT

Conditions For Search More Advantageous Wednesday

DESTROYERS AND SUBS JOIN HUNT

Naval Officers More Hopeful That Airmen Will Be Found

(Associated Press)
LAIHAUNI, Island of Maui, Sept. 2.—Three naval seaplanes took off from here at the break of dawn today and flew toward the eastern horizon in a determined effort to learn the fate of the missing plane PN-9 number one. Conditions for the search were greatly improved over those of last night when wind, rain and rough seas made survival doubtful of the five airmen who Monday started on a scheduled non-stop flight from San Francisco to Honolulu.

The first message received here from the three seaplanes today said that clearing weather permitted them an unobstructed view for miles and the ocean had calmed down advantageously. There was no visible trace, however, of the missing seaplanes.

With today's searching seaplanes, navy officials assigned half a dozen submarines, several destroyers and other crafts which steamed out to the east in fan formation. Officials continued optimistic that the missing aviators would be rescued, despite the lapse of more than 15 hours since the PN-9 number one radiocast her last message.

Throughout the night three destroyers engaged in a systematic search of the area in which the plane was believed forced down.

They steamed 100 miles, plying their powerful searchlights.

The U. S. S. Aroostook airplane tender, succeeded in launching a scouting plane at four o'clock this morning.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 2.—The PN-9 number three, in two of the destroyer William Jones arrived off Crissy Field at 8 a.m. today, after being forced down late Monday some 300 miles out from San Francisco on her attempted flight to Honolulu.

Lieutenant A. P. Snody, her commander, and crew of four, were unhurt. They remained in the seaplane during the 300-mile journey back to shore.

ANTHRACITE REGION BEGINNING TO FEEL EFFECTS OF STRIKE

Army of Bread Winners Demobilized And Business Stops

RAILROAD CREWS ARE CURTAILED

Many Miners Leaving Homes To Seek Work In Other Fields

(Associated Press)
PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2.—The anthracite region today began to feel the aftermath of the mine suspension which for 24 hours has padlocked its basic industry and demobilized an army of 148,000 bread-winners.

The business paralysis which ten anthracite counties face indefinitely, began to creep down the rails of the road carrying its coal. Outbound tonnage is practically cleaned up and on its way to market. Inevitable orders for shut downs of shops and layoffs of shopmen on mine runs have begun to put in appearance.

Prediction that at least 10,000 railroad men would follow the miners into idleness because of the suspension, appeared justified in reports from Scranton.

Mine owners continue their assurances they do not contemplate importation of outside help in an attempt to re-open the workings.

Union leaders of the three districts are engaged in smoothing out differences developing in connection with the work of 10,000 maintenance men remaining in the mine. Some question is arising as to what is maintenance work.

A noticeable movement of miners, setting out in search for work in other fields developed today. Special excursion trains on various roads carried quotas of foragers as well as pleasure seekers.

Girl Sustains Slight Injury In Accident

Miss Dolores Hardage, Johnston street, Albany, received painful injuries about the face late this morning when the car which she occupied, driven by Miss Mary Wallace Smiley, is said to have been backed into by another car near the curb in front of Cranes Clothes Shop, upper Second avenue. Miss Hardage was taken across the street to Thompson's Drug company and later to the offices of Dr. J. C. Bragg where medical aid was administered. Miss Hardage's injuries while painful, were not in the least serious. Bystanders declared that they did not know the driver of the other car.

Her death occurred there later in the day and only a few hours after her arrival.

Funeral services were held in Selma this morning.

JAMES GODSEY DIES AT LOCAL HOSPITAL FOLLOWING ATTACK

Bite By Dog Six Weeks Ago Proves Fatal To Prominent Farmer

FUNERAL SERVICE HELD WEDNESDAY

Cities Are Shocked By Unfortunate Plight Well Known Man

Funeral services will be held this afternoon for James Robert Godsey, prominent farmer, who died at a local hospital last night as the first fatality from rabies in this section in about 15 years.

Mr. Godsey was bitten on the hand by a dog six weeks ago and took the preventative treatment, but to no avail and he was taken to the hospital Tuesday in a desperate effort to combat the disease to which he succumbed last night at 8:30 o'clock.

The funeral cortege will leave the Brown Funeral company parlors on Ferry street at 2:45 o'clock this afternoon and move to the city cemetery chapel, where funeral services will be conducted at three o'clock by Rev. Claude Orear, pastor of the First Methodist church. Interment will be made here.

The following will be pallbearers: Joe Burns, Casey Holland, W. E. Roper, H. L. Davidson, L. W. Norton and Rex Finlay.

The deceased is survived by his widow; two daughters, Mrs. O. W. McKenzie of Dayton, Tenn., and Miss Pearl Godsey; two sons, Robert Lee and Paul Edward Godsey; two brothers, J. L. and R. L. Godsey of Dayton Tenn.; three sisters, Mrs. James Hale of Dayton, Tenn.; Mrs. Fred J. Darwin of Slaton, Texas and Mrs. Kate Landerson of Sedan, Texas.

The unfortunate death of Mr. Godsey has shocked this entire section. His brave fight for life, against almost hopeless odds, caused widespread interest and his plight was the subject of conversation everywhere in the cities late yesterday and last night.

Physicians declared his case a very exceptional one, in that he died even after having taken the pasteur treatment to prevent rabies. They explained, however, that about two percent of the total number of treatments given to prevent rabies in humans failed of their purpose.

The battle against stray dogs continued with increased fury today and all citizens were warned to keep their pets in with rabie vmbgkujzboqkij. pets in places of safety. So many dogs have been found recently with rabie conditions that officers said it was difficult to tell how widespread was the infestation and how many canines have been bitten by animals which already have gone mad. Several days usually is required for a dog to develop visible symptoms of having the disease, even after it has become infected. For that reason citizens were urged not only to keep their pets tied up, or muzzled and in a safe place, but to keep a careful watch on all stray dogs and beware of them.

Mrs. Parke sketched out tentative plans for the federation before leaving America.

"Our main objective," she said before leaving, "are, first, to set standards, create ideals, and to be an influence in helping to bring about an enlarged consciousness in Alabama along lines of educational advancement and civic betterment."

Mrs. Adams, in announcing Mrs. Parke's plans for the year, said that chairwoman of the various departments had been selected and that in each case the office was given to a woman expert in the particular line of work supervised by her department.

These departments and the chairwomen in charge, are as follows:

"Applied education: Miss Hattie Morton, Birmingham. Under this department are the divisions of community service, including civics and motion pictures; conservation, public instruction, including illiteracy, vocational education and kindred subjects, American citizenship and Scholarship. Lawyers at Detroit Told of Newspapers' Value To Profession

(Associated Press)
DETROIT, Sept. 2—Closer relations between bar associations of the country and the press were urged by Julius Henry Cohen of New York in his address as chairman, opening the conference of bar association delegates today.

"The progress that has been made in the formulation of ethical standards, in the improved machinery and administration of the law, in the raising of standards for admission to the bar, could never have been brought about except through the co-operation of the press," said Mr. Cohen. "But the press is not organized as is the profession of medicine, or even as ours is, though as we have pointed out, our own organization is still in the making. Newspaper publishers are men of business. Newspaper editors are beginning to evolve just now a form of associational activity. The serious attempt made last year to bring about a formal relationship between the two professions was unsuccessful. The two professions are not yet properly organized for formal co-operation. There must be co-operation between the press and the bar, but for some time to come it will be co-operation of a different kind."

Mr. Cohen referred to a committee report to be made which would outline a plan of cooperation between the two professions by closer relationship between the organized bar in each state and the newspapers of that state.

"What the bar is doing in the improvement of machinery for the administration of justice, for the modernizing of legal institutions, for the maintenance of high character qualifications for admission to the bar, and for the disciplining of those who offend, are all matters about which each state bar organization will find the press of its state only too willing to inform the public and to aid in the formation of supporting public opinion," the speaker continued.

"The modern newspaper has so many fields to cover, the changes taking place from day to day are so kaleidoscopic, that no newspaper, no matter how well informed or how well organized, can keep abreast of the activities of the bar associations of the country unless those activities are brought to its attention. Every state bar association should have a committee whose business it is to see that the press of its state is kept fully informed of associational activities.

"The suggestion recently made by Don C. Seitz of the New York World, that in every bar association there be created a bureau of correct information is a valuable one. Such a bureau could furnish the press with correct information regarding pending cases, the issues involved and decisions rendered. Conducted by a bar association and speaking in its name, there would be no danger of its improper use. The newspaper could rely upon receiving disinterested information, uncolored by desire to favor one side or another, and free from suspicion of self-exploitation or advertisement. The existence of such a bureau would in itself prevent error from occurring in the first instance, provide for its correction if it did occur, and avoid its repetition."

THORNTON & PRICE

How would you like to engage in a hand to hand combat with a polar bear? You wouldn't care for it? Well then, how about battling four of these giant animals of the polar regions, whose combined weight is over 2,000 pounds? Even that does not sound interesting to you, but you'll have an opportunity to witness this feat when John Robinson's Circus comes to Albany-Decatur September 11 for afternoon and night performances and parade.

Theo. Schroeder, noted subjugator of wild animals, will offer in one of the large steel arenas, the biggest group of polar bears ever exhibited. These brutes were imported direct from Europe for the 1925 tour of the earth's oldest circus and spectators will see a routine of feats that have never been accomplished by similar animals. Schroeder spent six years in training his charges, before offering them to the public, and the act is said to be the last word in performing animals.

A smashing climax is furnished when Schroeder engages in a hand to hand battle with four of the big bears. To protect himself from mortal injury he wears a steel helmet on his head, an iron collar around his neck, and a heavy suit of double leather. Despite these precautions he frequently is injured. With no other circus can you witness this feat of a man fighting polar bears.

PENITENT BABE ON PROBATION PERIOD

Huggins Tells Slugger He Will Notify Him When Wanted

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Sept. 2—A penitent Babe Ruth today entered upon his first day of probation by winning the forgiveness of Miller Huggins, whom he criticized freely in Chicago under the sting of indefinite suspension and $5,000 fine for violation of training rules.

After a day of olive branch waving, during which he said to Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, "I made a fool of myself" the king of home run hitters awaited acceptance of his overtures of peace tendered to Huggins.

Saying that under no consideration would Ruth's fine of $5,000 be rescinded, Manager Huggins added:

"I will re-instate Ruth when I am convinced that he intends to do the right thing. I am the last person to make things hard for a player, but he will have to realize that the club is bigger than he is."

The Bambino tried to talk with Huggins, but the latter said he would telephone when ready to hear him.

Mrs. Ruth, who is ill with an infected finger and a nervous breakdown tearfully accepted her husband's assurance that there were no truth in reports about him involving other women.

If things keep traveling at the present rate, a town will be known by the dogs it does not keep.

"What will the next war be like," asks a writer in this month's publication of "Association Men," a periodical published by the Y. M. C. A. We can think of no more specific answer than, "Just like Sherman said."

Shriners of North Alabama could not have settled upon a more worthy project than the building of an additional wing to the Benevolent hospital. It is needed, it is wanted, money paid toward the building of this wing will be money placed in service for the cause of humanity.

ASPHALT COMPANY TURNS ANOTHER PAGE IN INDUSTRIAL HISTORY

Announcement that the Southern Rock Asphalt Company is preparing to develop the asphalt deposits in this section, placing a $250,000 plant here with from 300 to 500 operatives, marks the turning of another page in the history of industrial North Alabama. Just a few days ago the giant turbines at Muscle Shoals began revolving. Nearly every day brings about some new development in North Alabama lands and properties.

The coming of the Southern Rock Asphalt Company into this territory, welcomed enthusiastically. The hills of Northern Alabama with the wealth of ores might stand idle forever unless some company or group of individuals had the foresight necessary and started activities on the various projects.

North Alabama asphalt products have withstood all the necessary tests required, the company has met the provisions of the Alabama Blue Sky statute, and the work of actual development will be started immediately according to L. D. Powell, general manager of the company to whom the work of development is due. Mr. Powell has been laboring in this section for many months, confident that his own and the judgment of chemists, geologists and engineers was correct. His faith in the product will now receive the reward for hard work and Albany-Decatur and the surrounding section will be benefited with another large industry.

We hope that the company will be successful in the campaign prior to the start of actual building of the plant and that nothing will prevent the start of operations within a few short months.

UNUSUAL VIEW IS TAKEN OF FLORIDA BOOM BY LOCAL MAN

Perhaps the philosophical mood in which a local man was caught the other day will shed a little extra light on the Florida boom situation as it now stands.

Hearing a conversation on the boom in full progress, the local man kept his tongue until the other fellows had tired themselves out espousing their individual causes and giving their own viewpoints on the subject at hand, then slowly and in a philosophical manner he said slowly, "Florida, the land of opportunity and hunger."

What this man said of Florida is true. Florida has been a country of flowing gold for some and it has been a section of flowing gold for others, the difference has been in the flow of the gold, some has flown into the pocket while others have experienced that feeling of dread that lives in the heart when it is found that the pocket-book is slowly becoming empty.

The Florida boom has been very much like all other booms. The first man on the ground has been the man to gain the greatest benefit. As time goes on the small investor is choked out. He may invest in the best lands in the state but he will not realize the returns. Florida now is no place for the small man. The fellow who makes any money at all in the boom is the fellow who has the money to start with. He has to have the backing to put his transactions on the safe side.

Positions are plentiful in Florida right now. Large salaries are paid even for unskilled workmen, but the item of living expense enters into that surplus until there is no surplus and the workmen has not gained by going to the land of sunshine. He has only incurred an expense in moving, he has left the friends whom he has known for years, he has the problem of becoming acclimated in his new surroundings at an increased expense.

Florida has been the land of opportunities in the past few months, it has now become the land of opportunities and hunger. North Alabamians will do well to remain here and receive their pay checks under conditions to which they have become accustomed.

AN EXTRA SESSION OF THE STATE LEGISLATURE AND THE IMPORTANCE

Rumors from political circles ruffle the tranquil front of the state house, the "pros" have it that the legislature will be called into an extra session during the early days of 1926. The "cons" assume the "until death do us part" attitude and hope that no legislative body will be called into special session. Never mind about whether the session is called or not, let us look at the importance of an extra session, what might be accomplished towards the needs of the state. Readers will make note that we say, "might be accomplished," and not "what will be accomplished," for a legislature is an unknown quantity in the passage of measures until the session is at an end. What looks certain one day is defeated the next and the measure that looks like a sure loser, in a few hours may turn out to be a winner. That's the way the wheels at the state house turn, the man with the mind alert to the possibilities is the man who is in the statehouse at the right time with the right measure and the legislative mind in the right mood.

The Selma-Times Journal calls attention to the reasons for calling the session in the following paragraphs:

"The 'knowing ones' around the state-house who claim to be in close proximity to the gubernatorial mind are quoted to the effect that there will be a special session of the legislature called during the early days of 1926, provided definite educational and good roads programs can be rounded into form that will receive the solid support of the administration and its friends."

"The conditions laid down may not be insuperable, but they appear to lack a good deal of ground-work before justifying the conclusion that the law-makers will be called together. Just how to winnow the wheat from the chaff in the wide variety of plans and proposals to provide more money for the urgent needs of the schools is the big problem about which our 'best minds' do not scintillate as one. Likewise the John Rogers plan to sell 75 million dollars worth of bonds, using the proceeds to build roads and retiring the debt by means of a 3-cent tax on gasoline, has brought forth echoes of varying degrees of approval and dissonance."

"Gov. Brandon does well in issuing a blanket order to the partisans of these measures to go out and get together before coming to him with their pleas for an extra session. Without a great deal of preparatory deliberation and concession, the legislature would do nothing more than flounder in a wilderness of incertitude, through which the haven of sanity and safety perhaps would never be reached."

We differ with the Journal on the naming of the Seventy-five million bond issue to go toward the establishment of a permanent good roads system in the state of Alabama. The bond issue is not the property of Senator John A. Rogers, it is not the property of any individual or group of individuals, it is the property of the people to do with as they see fit to vote it as a needed measure or to doom Alabama to another year of mud roads, a discredit to the finest state in the union.

The seventy-five million bond issue sounds like a tremendous amount of money to begin with. It is a tremendous amount of money, but the people of Alabama should be willing to vote it. In times of war the people of the United States have risen as one and voted huge sums toward the maintenance of war and the keeping of United States armies in the field of battle. Why then, in times of peace, should not Alabama go to war against bad roads? Is there any real reason why Alabama should be labeled the nation over as a state of the non-progressive type, a state that steadily refuses to build good roads and thereby discourages tourist travel and thousands of people who might desire to settle within our boundaries on the merit of good roads alone? Alabama people must give the matter consideration. The issue belongs to them and before voting their way on the question, before reaching a hasty conclusion either in favor of or against the measure, give it thought, for the immediate future of the state will be determined to a great extent by the acts of the present. Alabama must go forward or backward, Alabama cannot stand still without fear of disintegration of the drive toward the top of the list of Southern states.

Then there is the matter of the support of Alabama schools. It is an important one, a question that should not require any argument in the state legislature. The need for a better school system, or rather a completely equipped school system is felt and is known, then there surely is no need for halting or hesitating. The time for action is the present. Present Alabama in the true light to the people of the outside world. Be prepared within our own borders and it will not be difficult to bring others in to live with us and to prosper with us.

The Journal commends Governor Brandon for sending the forces advocating the extra session back to their respective territories to find what the people think of these measures. Yes, we agree that the Governor has taken the right attitude, he is seeking to serve the will of the people and not the will of a minority that may wish to push through some legislation without the knowledge of the people.

We believe, however, that a session of the legislature at an early date can result in profits for Alabama, provided of course, the lawmakers actually get down to work and accomplish for the state as a whole. To go to Montgomery for the sake of riding a train and to return home with the glory of having entered into argument is only lost motion. Bring these issues to the front and present them to the people. Alabama's people are a just people and a thinking people and if the plan adopted and advocated by the state legislature is feasible and good then the people will back the measures, otherwise we will be glad to see them defeated.

There is no argument to be placed against good roads, there is nothing that may be said against better schools, then the best move to make is to come to the people with it. They will be glad to lend an ear to the wish of the legislature.

Call the legislature together and see what is best to be done, let us not wait another year or two years before we get started. Other states get started and over with projects. Alabama will do well to follow the example and think of the motto of our state as not being "Here We Rest" but "Here We Rest After the Important Labors Are Finished and the State is enjoying the best that the Southland has to offer." Alabama has the facilities, Alabama has not the schools nor the roads, then let's find out how to get them. Call the legislature and give the plan to the people that they might give thought at once to the questions of the day.

ABUSE OF THE BODY SHOWN BY PAIN

If Some People Treated an Animal the Way They Do Their Bodies They Would Be Arrested for Unnecessary Cruelty.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

ISN'T it disagreeable to wake up in the morning with a headache? Perhaps you have planned a day of hard work. You find yourself incapable of taking to the task the energy and enthusiasm necessary to do it well.

Why should you have a headache? What is the cause? It is not often we sit down long enough to analyze life. We rush along, helter-skelter, disregarding the value of hygiene. Then when an uncomfortable symptom presents, we wonder what caused it.

If you treated your horse the way you do your body you would be taken to court by the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The S. P. C. A. would surely get you at least once a week.

Every few days you read about the arrest of some wicked owner of a beast permitted to stand in the sun without adequate food and water. The culprit is fined twenty dollars for cruelty.

The same owner, lord and master of his own body, works all day in the sun, gulps down quart after quart of water, eats unsuitable food and lands in the hospital. There he is given tender care at public expense and nursed back to health.

You would laugh at the idea of arresting the man for abusing his body. If he actually deliberately attempted to commit suicide, he could be arrested and, as a matter of fact, probably would be. But for the millions of cruelties, self-inflicted, men are never called to account.

Somewhat, we do not classify the abuse of a poor, helpless body with the abuse of a poor, helpless horse. But why shouldn't we?

You say there is a great difference between the ignorant mistreatment of the body under the stress of necessity, and the mistreatment of a dumb beast. I wonder if there is such a difference. Ignorance and necessity are usually involved in the abuse of animals, just as they are in the abuse of the body. Don't misunderstand me—I utterly despise a man who would maltreat a helpless animal. I believe he should be severely punished. But I sometimes think the man who neglects and damages his body should be punished, too. Of course, he is made ill by his selfishness, but, too often, the punishment isn't plain enough and direct enough to serve as a warning against repetition.

If you habitually and frequently neglect the needs of your body, you may be confident that Nature is taking note of the fact in every instance. When you have a headache in the morning, think over what you did the night or day before. What was it you did that is wrong? Next time you are sick, think over what I have said to you today.

Austria and Germany. A union of all Germanic peoples into one great Federal Republic is possible, the German states to unite on the basis of our United States here.

BERNARD SHAW who knows more about America than some of our home-made statesmen, reminds the latter that this country has its own league of nations, made up of forty-eight states. Europe, instead of trying to drag us in, should form its own league of states, refraining from war between those states as states in this country refrain from war. Suppose Pennsylvania were fighting Texas and wanted Europe to come here and help us stop fighting, would not Europe laugh, and ask, "Well, why don't you stop?"

THAT same Bernard Shaw, in a mood of unusual but accurate humility, says that the world a thousand years hence will know nothing about him except that the great French sculptor, Rodin, once made a bust of Shaw. In a thousand years says Shaw, biographical dictionaries will contain this: "Shaw, Bernard; subject of a bust by Rodin; otherwise unknown."

EVEN that's an overstatement, for in a thousand years Rodin won't be remembered any more than Shaw. Rodin, in about 1,000 years from now will be as unimportant as Kipling in literature or Shaw in philosophy.

CIRCLE HOSTESS TO WOMEN OF CHURCH

The James Duncan Memorial Circle members proved themselves charming hostesses when on Monday afternoon they entertained the women of the First Methodist church on the church grounds on Lafayette street. The lawns with their carpet of green were beautified with bright hued dahlias and goldenglow. Mrs. W. T. Lowe, president of the circle, was assisted in receiving by all of the members each of whom mingled with their guests and served them refreshing frappe.

A number of local artists appeared on the program giving readings and vocal and instrumental solos, which called forth much applause to which they graciously responded. Mrs. R. M. McGlathery was accompanied on the piano in her vocal solo by Mrs. H. O. Troup. Miss Elizabeth Wallace rendered an instrumental solo. Mrs. Arwin Draper, who gave readings was followed by a solo by Miss Louise Flemming accompanied by Mrs. Rufus Peerson. Miss Rowena Baker sang and the program closed with a reading by Mrs. Earle Calvin.

A delectable ice course with mints and nuts was served cafeteria style late in the afternoon to the sixty guests present. Among the newcomers and out of town guests who enjoyed this hospitality were: Mrs. Rucker Mason, formerly of Commerce Ga., who is now making her home here, Mrs. Still, Mrs. C. B. Sanders of Birmingham and Mrs. James A. Duncan.

Landmark Passes From The Horizon

Workmen have started upon the plans for the remodeling of the Masonic building, located on Johnston street, Albany. Laborers and contractors were busy today beginning the tearing out of walls, removal of rooms as provided in the architects plans, thus ending the final act in the life of the historic old playhouse.

Speaking of the building today, a prominent Mason and a resident of these cities since 1896 told of the building of the popular playhouse. "It was first known as the Payne theatre, named for E. C. Payne who was one of the prime movers in the erection of the house. It was done through popular subscription, or rather, stock selling and the opening date was in the year 1906. I have forgotten the first show that was played, but I distinctly remember that I thought it was one of the finest plays I had ever witnessed. The speaker talked with just a bit of huskiness in his voice as his thoughts wandered to the tearing down of the theater portion of the building.

"In 1908 the Masonic Lodge bought the building and I continued to see many fine plays presented. Some of the best known actors and actresses in the nation and in the world have appeared from time to time on that old stage and it seems almost like the tearing down of a shrine," the speaker concluded.

Albany Lodge, 491, A. F. & A. M., is at the present time expending in the neighborhood of $30,000 on remodeling the structure, making it into three full stories in height and leaving the first floor open as a banquet hall, removing the theatre section.

The final theatrical performance has been witnessed at the Masonic stage has been darkened forever, never again will the theatre-goers of Albany-Decatur and the surrounding section witness the splendid performances in the ancient building. In the march of progress the glories of old are often overshadowed with the brilliance of the modern. So has it been with the Masonic theatre. The joys of witnessing performances at the landmark have been eliminated forever, but in the stead the Masonic lodge will have one of the finest and best equipped structures in the state. The entire second and third floors will be used as lodge rooms by the local Masons and the need for larger quarters will not again be felt for a long while at least.

Rev. Goodwin Back From His Vacation

After a months vacation, Dr. L. F. Goodwin has returned to finish his work as pastor of Westminster Presbyterian church. The first part of the month was spent conducting special services in Mississippi and Tennessee and the latter part with Mrs. Goodwin visiting relatives and friends near Birmingham.

For more than a year Dr. Goodwin had been contemplating a change, thinking that a warmer climate would be beneficial to himself and especially to Mrs. Goodwin who has been in poor health for several years. Just before leaving for vacation he placed his resignation in the hands of the church officials who have accepted it. The Presbytery to which they belong will probably release him when it meets September 22. In the meantime, he will have charge of the services of the church which will be conducted as usual.

Later Dr. and Mrs. Goodwin will probably go to Florida for the winter. Dr. Goodwin has several invitations to visit points here with a view of locating.

3 Churches Busy Preparing for Meet

Young people of the Westminster Presbyterian, Westside Presbyterian and Willoughby Presbyterian churches are preparing for one of the largest meetings held here in that particular branch of work when the young people of Huntsville Presbytery will gather on Friday. The sessions will continue through Sunday.

Local leaders are issuing invitations, preparing a delightful dinner and getting all in readiness for the gathering.

One day talking with a stranger he recommended Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, which helped me at once. Save the surface and you save all

Paint to Protect —As Well as to Beautify

WHEN you get ready to paint and are talking it over, debating this color and that, don't overlook the most vital point—protection. The biggest job paint has to do is to save the surface. It is a well-known fact that Pee Gee Mastic Paint has never been surpassed in protecting any surface to which applied. Its beauty is an incident to its real value—adding long years of life to your home, barn, out-buildings—wherever used. It stays "put" and retains its high gloss for years.

Queer Replies Made By Some Applicants In Civil Service Test

(Associated Press)
LOS ANGELES, Sept. 2.—Ingenuous reasoning may at times serve in the absence of accurate information, but it is not always a safe substitute. This was the generalization formulated by Carl V. King, secretary of the Los Angeles civil service board, after going over the examination paper of a class of candidates recently seeking municipal employment.

"What is labor distribution sheet?" was one question. A candidate, evidently relying upon his reasoning faculty rather than knowledge, replied, "One that is edited by the laboring class in the form of newspaper and is distributed for the purpose of keeping their fellowmen enthusiastic."

To the question, "What is arson?" another candidate replied, "The act of trying to poison a person with arsenic."

Other question and answers were:
Q. What is a morgue?
A. A piece of paper held against property for borrowed money.
Q. What does habeas corpus mean?
A. The red corpuscles in the blood.
Q. What is a kleptomaniac?
A. A person with a mania causing him to lie unnecessarily.
Q. What is a moron?
A. A man man who has more than one wife.

Answers found in the examination papers of another class revealed that the motor truck still holds mysteries for some, even in this mechanical age. "What causes heavy black smoke to come out of the exhaust pipe of a truck?" the class was asked. "It is the only place it can come out," replied a candidate.

"What is the purpose of a fan on a motor truck?" was another question. "To supply fresh air to the carburetor," was one answer.

"If you found a man with a severe cut on the head that was bleeding freely, what would you do?" another class was asked. "I would put a tourniquet on his neck," announced one student of first aid.

The city board of education of Greenville has voted to expend $20,000 in constructing an annex to grammar school building now in use.

Announcement has been made that the Alabama Highway commission will shortly call for bids on the work of re-surfacing the Gadsden-Birmingham road to the Jefferson county line with asphalt. It is thought that work on the road will start before October 1.

Contract for $19,000 worth of paving has been let to Skinner and Maxwell by the city commission of Tuscaloosa. A small part of this amount will be used for sidewalk construction.

R. H. Wills, business manager and associate professor of history at Alabama college, received the degree of master of arts at the close of the Cornell summer school.

Governor Writes Ad to Aid North Dakota Better Roads Move

(Associated Press)

BISMARCK, N. D., Sept. 2.—Governor A. G. Sorlie, who was a salesman before he organized a business of his own and which he deserted for the executive chair, has put some of his advertising practices into state use.

In the state highway bulletin, which hopes to aid in developing popular support for a statewide better roads campaign a whole page is devoted to what is labelled "Another ad by the Governor." Another title says "A. G. writes to the boys."

The advertisement is a little statement which the governor has sent to every employee of his state in which he said in part:

"We are in the public service business—you and I—let's do our part to put our products on the sellers' market and merchandise our protein wheat. We have an exclusive wheat that is raised here only, 'The Best of the West.' It makes the best flour in the world."

"The people of North Dakota have created a state laboratory called the Mill and Elevator. It is a research bureau that makes test on a large scale and therefore must be conducted as a commercial enterprise in order to fully function. For the economic welfare of the agriculture sections it is essential that the laboratory succeed."

"You and I are state employees who get our living from the same people who have provided this laboratory and who must defray the costs of these researches not met by its commercial earnings."

"Dakota Main, the product of our state laboratory, is the best flour from the best wheat. If North Dakota is to prosper then North Dakota must use its products first and all the time. As state employees, we owe it greater loyalty than the average citizen."

The state mill and elevator to which the governor refers was one of the enterprises into which the state plunged following the raise to political power of the nonpartisan league. It has failed to show profit to date but one of the governor's campaign promises was that he would put the $3,000,000 concern on its feet and make it pay. He the manager of the institution, its direction having been placed in his hands by the last legislature. Gov. Sorlie was elected as a nonpartisan.

UNUSUAL RECORD BY ALABAMA WOMAN

Mrs. Falkner Is Said To Be One Of Ablest Attorneys

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 1.—First woman assistant attorney general of the state of Alabama and first chairwoman of the state pardon board at 30, and first woman recording secretary to the governor of the state at 31 is the record of Mrs. Edwina Falkner who is regarded by many persons as one of the most able lawyers of the state.

Mrs. Falkner says that she would have done more than this had she not taken time out of the game of life to keep house for five years.

If a bystander should hear Mrs. Falkner make that last statement, she will explain that the remark is not meant egotistically, but that it is a faint indication of her leanings toward fatalism. While the recording secretary does not profess to be a fatalist, she will admit that she has several convictions that tinge of fatalism. She thinks that what will happen, will happen.

In listing the honors won by Mrs. Falkner during her career to date, her membership in the Phi Delta Delta honorary legal fraternity for women should not be left out, nor should her office as president of the Pilot club be ignored.

Mrs. Falkner tells an interesting story of her life. In telling it here today she said that she started work at 18 for the law firm of Estes, Jones and Wilson, at Bessemer, Ala. After a year with that firm, she married and settled down for five years.

Married life made this energetic woman restless after a while and she went back to work. She gained valuable experience as assistant county treasurer under C. B. Rogers when he was serving his term as treasurer of Jefferson county. She then went to the circuit court at Bessemer as an assistant clerk.

Constantly associating with lawyers, Mrs. Falkner realized that a law education would help her greatly in her work, so she went to Vanderbilt to study.

"I won a scholarship my first year at Vandy by leading my class of 65," Mrs. Falkner said naively. There was no conceit in her way of stating this fact, she made it seem that part of the story would have been left out if she had failed to mention the award.

"After I had finished my two years at Vandy," Mrs. Falkner continued, "I came to Montgomery to stand the law examination to be admitted to the bar. I was then that Mr. Davis offered me the position as assistant attorney general."

It was during the two years that Mrs. Falkner spent at Vanderbilt that Fate decreed the death of her husband, leaving her to play the game alone.

"After I had been assistant attorney general for some time, I was given the job I now have, but you all know about that," she concluded.

When Mrs. Falkner paused after telling of her life, she was queried as to her plans for the future.

"I intend to marry again and settle down if I can find the right man," said this interesting lawyer, "I consider the career of marriage greater than any other woman can undertake."

Before any further questions could be asked, Mrs. Falkner anticipated the curiosity of her hearers by saying rapidly, "I am a suffragist, but not a militant suffragist. I am an Episcopalian and am 31 years of age, and oh yes, I went to Montevello to college."

"Do you believe that women should plan a political career?" was the next question fired at her.

Boys Will Go On Hike Saturday

The Y. M. C. A., through its Boys' Department, announces a hike for young boys on Saturday of this week. Charles Ashwander, Boys' Secretary, will be in charge, and stands ready to take the boys wherever they wish to go. All that is required of the boys is that they bring a healthy lunch, and should they go to a cave that they bring a spot light.

All boys, member or not of the Y. M. C. A., including Pioneers, are invited. Let us make this a good hike," is the plea of Mr. Ashwander.

Walter Johnson Sends Nats Nearer Top As Experience Triumphs Over Youngsters

The old, old story of the triumph of age over youth was told Tuesday at Griffith stadium, Washington when Walter Johnson, famed Senatorial hurler, slugged the Senators to a 7-3 victory over the Mackmen in the first of the championship series. On the outcome of this series the clinching of the American league flag is likely to depend.

Further testifying that the axiom 'age will triumph over inexperience,' Roger Peckinpaugh, star of the last world series and a victim of the creeping years, went to the bat in the fourth and hit for two sacks, took third on the throw and then stole home off Slim Harris as he was winding up for the pitch. Peck and Johnson hit four of the Senators eleven blows for the afternoon.

Roger Peckinpaugh and Walter Johnson were both regarded as being through last season at the close of the world title argument. Peckinpaugh was laid up during the series when his aged knees started creaking. Walter Johnson was knocked from the box on two occasions by the Giants before he was allowed to step into the breach in the last tussel and clinch the first world title for the Senators.

The Tuesday victory places the Senators four and one half games ahead of the Mackmen while in the National league the Pirates continued to fatten their average by sweeping the four game series with the Phils. The Pirates have already tucked their napkins underneath their chins and prepared to enjoy the championship pie.

Today's game will probably see two of the best boxmen in the big leagues facing each other. Stanley Coveleskie may be sent against Sam Gray. Both are league leaders and the argument should wax warm before the afternoon sun has set. Mack may hurl Lefty Groves into the thick of the fray while Stanley Harris is likely to all upon Dutch Reuther. In either event the game will go a long way towards deciding the leaders for the year.

TULANE STARTS

(Associated Press)
NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 2.—With the University of Missouri, Missouri Valley conference champions, and Northwestern, one of the ranking members of the Big Ten, on the ten game schedule he has prepared for his "Greenies" this season, Clark Shaughnessy has his work cut out for him in whipping Tulane University's Green Wave into shape to wash through the season, if it is to sweep all before it.

In addition to Missouri and Northwestern, the Tulane machine will battle five Southern conference eleven and three teams from smaller institutions in the state, among them Centenary.

Shaughnessy's squad will be minus the flashy "Brother" Brown, a half-back feared by all opponents, and Junior Henican, another consistent half, in addition to three of his linemen, Gene Fergert, Hank Phillips and Ben Goldsmith. Although these five are gone, sixteen letter men are returning and with them a host of reserves and Freshmen stars, and Tulane supporters are freely predicting that the team will rank with the best in the Southland.

Lester Lautenschlager, captain, and a number of dependable backs are returning among them a champion, Fred Lamprecht, national intercollegiate golf champion, who will be available as a fullback.

Line material is plentiful with dependable candidates to fill the holes left by the three graduated veterans:

Assembling for the first workout on September 7th, less than three weeks before the opening game with Louisiana College, the Greenies will be put through stiff workouts and when the opening whistle blows, the Olive and Blue machine will be ready for the fray.

The Missouri game will be played in New Orleans on October 3, the second game of the season, after which the Tulane squad will enter their first Southern Conference engagement, with the University of Mississippi at New Orleans. The following week they meet the Mississippi A. & M. eleven in the last game at home before their invasion of Chicago where they will meet Northwestern.

The Mississippi Aggies last year punctured Tulane aspirations for the Southern Conference title, when the Mississippians decisively defeated the unbeaten Greenie team. The game this year will be looked upon as another test of championship prospects.

The third conference game will be with Auburn the week following the Northwestern game, when the Greenies play the Plainsmen at Crampton bowl at Montgomery. Louisiana Polytech makes a break in the Conference games the following week and then Sewanee's Tigers will descend upon Tulane from the hills of Tennessee. The following week the big game of the year from the aspect of the two institutions involved will be played when the Greenies invade Baton Rouge to play the Louisiana State Tigers for the twenty-third engagement between the two schools.

The Greenies close their labors for the season when they play the tenth game of the season with Centenary College at Shreveport.

The schedule is as follows:
Sep. 26, Louisiana College.
Oct. 3, University of Missouri.
Oct. 10, University of Miss.
Oct. 17, Miss. A. & M.
Oct. 24, Northwestern at Chicago.
Oct. 31, Auburn at Montgomery.
Nov. 7, Louisiana Polytech.
Nov. 14, Sewanee.
Nov. 21, Louisiana State at Baton Rouge.
Nov. 26, Centenary at Shreveport.
